Good morning!

We have two weeks left before Finals Week begins, and with so much going on, it definitely feels like the end of the semester. In Notes, Dr. Higdon mentioned the Lineworker Rodeo this week and the PDI's May offerings (which, by the way, look really great), but here are a few other highlights:

First Friday Art Walk / Artsfest 2025

The arts scene is alive and well at Ozarks Tech, and this coming weekend offers multiple opportunities to experience it:

- Friday, May 2 – Don't miss the First Friday Art Walk reception for the Ozarks Tech Student Art Exhibition, 5:30-7:30 p.m. at the Mount Carmel Building (corner of National and Pythian). The exhibit features work from students in a variety of Art and Graphic Design Technology classes. Refreshments will be served, and all are welcome.

- Sunday, May 4 – Head to Artsfest 2025 and catch performances by our talented music students:
    - Ozarks Tech Choir: Noon on the Wagon Stage (Walnut St. and National Avenue)
    - Jazz Ensemble: 1:45 p.m. on the West End Stage (corner of JQH Parkway and Walnut St.)

Dress For Success

Thank you to everyone who supported Career Services/ recent Dress for Success event. Over two days, the staff and volunteers served 267 students and distributed approximately 750 items of professional clothing and accessories. Your donations will help students feel confident as they head into interviews, graduations, and other significant occasions. A big thank you to Tammy Casey and Cindy Bennett in Career Services for coordinating this impactful event.

Faculty Salary Study Results

Lockton, the firm the college engaged to conduct a faculty salary review, will share their findings on Thursday, May 1 at 3 p.m. on Teams. All full-time faculty are invited to hear the results and recommendations and learn about the college's planned next steps. Click this link to attend.

Have a great week!
